

Artlink - About Project.

We had been working for a long period of time with lots of different individuals in the hospital, and these individuals were moving out into the community, and we thought it would be a good thing to do a follow up project with people a year down the line, two years down the line, sometimes five years down the line.

It's the research phase, which was concluded a while back, and the artist is working up a script on the basis of that research, and from that, we will make a video work.

You hear all the time different reports about how people are coping with being in the community, and I think it would be quite nice to get it from a very very individualised perspective.

And it allows people the opportunity to have their say in a very creative and imaginative way, which they don't often get.

So the impact will be that people have a voice, and we have a way of getting people to listen. Which is pretty important.
