

Project Ability - About Project

Project Ability and Trongate Studios are both moving to new premises in September 2008. With this in mind, we have commissioned research into how the studios can be used more effectively once they've made that move.

This research project will mainly be looking at two things, firstly, we hope to gain a deeper understanding of the needs and requirements of those artists accessing Trongate Studios.

Secondly, we will be investigating the barriers that face Trongate Studio artists to continuing their artistic development within a more commercial or mainstream setting.

I hope the outcome of this research leads to continuation, and indeed a growth of the reputation and success that Trongate Studios has successfully built for itself since 1994.
